Friends of the Castro Valley Library
November 2018

The Annual Meeting will be held November 7th at the Library Chabot/Canyon Room. See page 5 for more info.

PRESIDENT'S REPORT

By Kay Wetherwax

It is that time of year...time to renew your membership in the Friends of the Castro Valley Library. The membership year runs from January 1 through December 31. Your renewal information is included in this newsletter, and the new membership cards will be available by October 27. We need your continued support for our fabulous library!

The Annual Meeting of the Friends of the Castro Valley Library will take place on Wednesday, November 7 at 6:00 PM in the Chabot Room of the library. We will be electing a Vice-President, Operational and Recording Treasurers, and a Director-at-Large. We will also be asking our members to approve a couple of minor changes to our By-Laws, namely formalizing the tasks of our two Co-Treasurers and adding two additional Directors-at-Large to the Board of Directors. A copy of the proposed changes to the By-Laws will be available for members of the Friends to review at the BookStore for ten days before the meeting. I hope many of you can join us November 7. We have been given a set of tickets to one of the programs presented this year by the Castro Valley Arts Foundation, and we'll have a drawing to give those tickets to one of the attendees at our meeting.

Many of our terrific BookStore volunteers (and some "significant others") attended our annual Volunteer Appreciation Party at the home of President Kay Wetherwax on October 5. We shared some delicious Mexican food and enjoyed socializing and getting to know each other better. Without the on-going efforts of these dedicated individuals, we would not be able to fund so many wonderful library programs that benefit our community in many, many ways!

On Saturday, October 6, we held a Pop-Up Children's Book Sale. What a great event! We sold more than 2500 books (most of them priced at 25 cents!) in four hours and made over $700. There were many happy, smiling children leaving the library with their new treasures!

And don't forget: Our last big book sale of 2018 will be the weekend of November 30-December 2. There will be many books, including lots of gift quality books that will make ideal holiday presents!

MESSAGE FROM THE LIBRARY MANAGER

By Dawn Balestreri, Branch Manager

We all have histories, and our histories are important. They are a sense of pride for some and embarrassment for others. Our family histories are handed down through generations, the older history becoming blurred as time passes. Some families have budding genealogists who painstakingly recreate their family's history on paper or online (the library has a free genealogy class if you are interested). Castro Valley has several individuals who have passionately preserved much information and photos about our community. Lucille Lorge and Randy Vanderbilt are two individuals whose names come to mind. Ms. Lorge has written extensively about Castro Valley and Mr. Vanderbilt has spoken to standing room only crowds at the library about the history of this community. The library also has a small historical area with a display case and documents.

The Hayward Area Historical Society is an amazing resource to locate historical information about Castro Valley and the surrounding communities. We were fortunate enough to have one of their archivists, John Christian, create a historical record for the Castro Valley Library. 1918 was the year the first dedicated branch opened in Castro Valley, named the "Brooder Branch" due to the building being a former chicken brooder. Castro Valley was a major producer of chickens at that time, so there were many brooders in the community. The "Brooder Branch" was one of six sites that the library has occupied. We have come a long way to our current address at 3600 Norbridge Ave., the second library to be built specifically as a county library. If you are interested in the history of our beloved branch, please email or visit the branch for a copy of our history.

So, what do you do when you realize in late August, that it is the 100-year anniversary of your library? You quickly coordinate a celebration! So, that's what we did. On Saturday, October 27, we celebrated our 100-year anniversary with live music from Misner and Smith, face painting, balloon animals, cake and ice cream of course! We even had a drawing for two of the original Eames chairs from the Redwood Rd branch, complete with chewing gum. It was a fun day of community and reflection. Special thanks to the Friends of the Library for generously providing funding for our party.

Happy Holidays to all our wonderful library community!

What's Your Public Library Worth?

By Lyn Leone, Librarian

Recently, I read about a library that has a feature on their check-out receipts that shows the cost savings of borrowing materials rather than buying them. The amount is calculated using the retail cost of the materials being borrowed; for example, the cover price of a just-published book. The receipt shows both per-visit and year-to-date savings for the cardholder. Some of the annual savings quoted in the article were astonishing, so I decided to calculate just how much the library is saving my household. Here's what I came up with:

My husband, John, and I both enjoy music and are careful to remember to download our 5-free songs per week through Freegal. Since we both have library cards, we download 10 songs per week. The average price of a song on iTunes is $1.00. Total savings? $520 per year.

We average two books checked out per week, mostly new hardcover fiction. Annual savings? A whopping $2,000 per year.

Both of us download magazines from the library's eMagazine services, Flipster and RBdigital, and have dropped personal subscriptions to six magazines. John also uses the library's online access to Morningstar and comes in to read ValueLine and Barron's. Savings? Over $700 a year.

We're big users of Acorn TV through RBdigital, as well as the other free library streaming services. The subscription price of Acorn is $4.99 per month. We also eliminated our subscription to HBO (at least until Game of Thrones comes back) and use the library's DVD collection for past HBO originals and feature films. Annual savings? A minimum of $240.

We used Discover & Go to attend the DeYoung, the Asian Art Museum, and the Blackhawk Museum this year and saved $105.

It's harder to put a value on live entertainment, but a ticket to a venue like Yoshi's or Freight & Salvage averages $20 per person. For the month of November the library has booked three professional musical acts. The Laura Wiley Jazz Combo performs on Sunday, November 4th, Flute Fantasia and the Milt Bowerman Jazz Quintet appear on Saturday, November 17th, and on Sunday, November 18th, Bridges, with Shanna Carlson and Hugo Wainzinger, perform (all these shows begin at 2 pm). It's likely John will attend at least two of these performances. Value? $40.

According to my calculations, at an absolute minimum, the library saves our little two-person household over $3,500 a year. Imagine what it would be if we had 2 or 3 kids!

Want to know what you're saving by borrowing rather than buying? For a quick approximation, visit the Library Value Calculator at www.ilovelibraries.org/what-libraries-do/calculator

IT'S TIME TO RENEW!

It's renewal time again! Here's how to renew your membership with the Friends of the Castro Valley Library for 2019:

- Use the enclosed remittance envelope to mail your membership dues. If you send us a stamped, self-addressed envelope, we are happy to mail your membership card to you. Otherwise, stop by the BookStore to pick up your card. Please allow a week to 10 days for your envelope to arrive and for our staff to update our roster. We appreciate your patience.
- Drop by the BookStore with your completed application and membership dues, and you will save a stamp and receive your new card instantly! You may use the form on the remittance envelope, the form in the newsletter, or the form we have on the wall outside the BookStore. Cards for 2019 are available now!
- Renew at the book sale. The next book sale is November 30 – December 2, and you may renew your membership any of the 3 days. If you have a current (2018) membership, you can still get in on Friday night, and your remaining $2.00 coupon on the back of the card is still good. If you did not renew for 2018, or if you're a new member, your purchase of a 2019 membership will admit you to the Friday Member Night and you will get a $2.00 coupon to use at the sale.

The dues have not changed! An individual membership is $10.00, and you will get $7.00 in coupons for the BookStore and a $2.00 coupon for each of the 2019 book sales ($13.00 in total discounts). If you purchase a family membership for $20.00, you will receive two membership cards and $26.00 in discounts. The other membership categories are: Corporate Sponsor $35.00, Benefactor $50.00, Youth $5.00, Lifetime $200.00, and Family Lifetime $300.00. All members gain entry to Member Night at the book sales and receive the Circle of Friends newsletter quarterly.

If you are a Lifetime member, you do not need to re-apply or send in your envelope; you will receive your 2019 membership card automatically.

The money from your dues pays for library programs and amenities that would otherwise not be possible.

The Midnight Line by Lee Child (2017 fiction): Jack Reacher is a dreamboat character, 6'6" of bone and muscle, unencumbered by family or a job. Doing good. As a war veteran, he is intrigued by a 2005 West Point medal in a Wisconsin pawn shop and begins a search for the owner. 'Tis a tiny ring, and so a woman, S.R.S. Reacher digs in, unearthing sufficient clues to shed sufficient light. His physical combat prowess is matched only by his skeletal vocabulary. He progresses from a simple question to an ever-deepening swamp of evil. Child introduces characters when necessary, and Reacher solicits and receives information. The background is haunting, convincing in detail, and startling in scope. I was disadvantaged because of my ignorance of U.S. geography, but I accepted vast undeveloped spaces and remote cabins. Opioid addiction, inescapable unrelenting pain and suffering, challenging his resources. I recommend this book for a reading timely in light of today's VA problems. (Martin Waldron)

The Weight of Ink by Rachel Kadish (2017 fiction): At nearly 600 pages, this work of historical fiction is not for the faint of heart. When a 17th century estate in England undergoes renovation, a cache of letters and documents which have not seen the light of day since the mid-1600's is discovered hidden under a stairwell. Ailing history professor Helen Watt and graduate student Aaron Levy are the initial evaluators and translators of the documents and determine that the probable writer is a Jewish woman, an astounding occurrence for a time in which women were primarily relegated to housework. Flipping back and forth between present day and the 1600's, the novel tells the story of Ester Velasquez, a Jewish Portuguese orphan who takes on the correspondence of a blind rabbi, and of Helen and Aaron's quest to find out more about Ester's role and her apparent contact with major philosophers such as Spinoza. It is a complicated story, some of which is told via the philosophical letters written to other Jewish clerics and to the various philosophers. If you are put off by the letters, be assured that you can skim most of them without losing the thread of the plots. This is a rich experience which contains much of the flavor of the 17th century, as well as a wonderful description of the documents and the complications of finding and protecting them. Helen, Aaron, and Ester are very special characters, and their stories are well-told. (Ginger Russell)

The Fix by David Baldacci (2017 fiction): David Baldacci has a surefire cast in Amos Decker and associates, notably Melvin Mars. Decker has perfect memory and Mars has an NFL body after 20 years solo imprisonment. The Fix challenges Decker and a first-class team in solving a mysterious suicide, presented in a succession of superb subplots. My complaint is exhaustion. The Fix could be presented as an unfolding and fascinating plot. I found it a succession of disparate developments. Each step of the way was complete and satisfying but brought to an insoluble and screeching halt. Then, time and again, Baldacci pulled rabbits out of his literary hat, often by way of Decker's brilliance, and we were on the trail again. I loved the twists and characters and emotional cul-de-sacs, but I felt cheated. It was unfair to this sophisticated thriller reader. However, I recommend The Fix for an infuriating marathon read. (Martin Waldron)

Little Fires Everywhere by Celeste Ng (2017 fiction): This study of family life in Shaker Heights begins at its conclusion, with the youngest Richardson daughter burning down the family home. The fire department analysis of the fire concludes that the fire began in multiple locations with "little fires everywhere." But back to the beginning of the Shaker Heights planned community, one that forges the lives of its inhabitants. The Richardsons are model residents, with their careers, community involvement, and four beautiful children. They own a rental property, which they rent to photographer Mia Warren and her daughter Pearl. While the tantalizing Warrens become a quasi-part of the Richardson circle, their financial struggles and nomadic history keep them an arms-length away. Then close friends of the Richardsons adopt an Asian baby, and differing opinions about the baby's origin cause a major rift between the Richardsons and the Warrens. Each character in this novel has its own personal subplot and problem to resolve, and as the story unfolds, it becomes apparent that the "little fires everywhere" are as much the difficulties in the lives of the characters as the more obvious actual fires. This is a very readable, fascinating take on the not-so-perfect Shaker Heights families and their life lessons. Recommended. (Ginger Russell)

FINANCIAL STATEMENT

By Barbara Kissling, Co-Treasurer

The past fiscal year ending September 30 saw our usual three successful book sales, pop-up sales of specific books, and pop-up membership sales. The funds generated from these sales together with the BookStore proceeds provided the opportunity to completely fund the Library Wishlist.

The Board of Directors will be presenting the 2017-2018 Annual Report and the budget for the coming year, as well as the Library Manager's Wishlist, at the Annual Meeting on November 7th. These reports will also be available in the BookStore office.

We hope that any of you who may be interested in what the Friends are all about will attend this meeting and continue to support our Library.

THANKS FOR YOUR DONATIONS!

As always, your generous donations are greatly appreciated. Guidelines listing the types of books and media that we accept are available at the BookStore or on our website. Donations may be dropped off at the BookStore during the hours we are open. If you have more than a few boxes, please call in advance as we may want to meet you at our storage facility. Please do not leave your donations outside when the library is closed; they may be damaged or stolen.

Our next book sale is the first weekend in December, and we would appreciate receiving your donations no later than mid-November so that we have time to process them. We cannot accept donations during the two weeks immediately prior to the sale.

Proceeds from the sale of your donated items benefit your library and your community by funding library programs and amenities that would not otherwise be possible.
